FRESHMAN YEAR

On a bright, sunny September day in 1957 we, the new North Andover freshmen, entered the halls of North Andover High School for the first time. This novel and wonderful experience opened the gateways to four years of a higher education and many prodigious memories which would stay with us forever.

After we had adjusted to the daily routine of high school life, we elected our class officers. Lanson Hyde was selected for the office of president; Janet Stephenson was chosen vice-president; and Elizabeth Kay was our secretary-treasurer.

We were not the only new additions to the school. Along with us came many new faculty members: Mrs. Dimlich, Miss Bailey, Miss Desrosiers, Miss Consoli, Miss White, Mr. Robinson, Mr. Hills and Mr. Foderaro.

In March the annual Brooks School Scholarship was received by Peter Battaglioli and Arthur Woodbury, as a result of their high achievement in a competitive examination.

The football team won the "Little Three" title by defeating Methuen and Andover.

The basketball team also achieved fame by defeating Chelmsford, Don Bosco, and Oliver Ames High Schools for the Class C Eastern Mass. Championship. This achievement was accomplished by the training of Coach Larochelle and a great team spirit.

Douglas Wilson obtained, for his excellent work on a memory machine, second prize in the local Science Fair.

We found new enjoyment in extra-curricular activities with the beginning of the Science and Photography Clubs.

In April "Our Miss Brooks" was the delightful school production. Our class was represented by Sheila Kelley, Dorothy Beletsky, and Lanson Hyde, who had important parts in the production. Judith Duda, Beverly Hoyt, Joyce Lee, Carol Murphy, Kathy Murphy, and Beverley Scannell were cast as understudies.

SOPHOMORE YEAR

After the summer vacation we returned to North Andover High as the "wise fools" of the school.

In September we recognized a change in the school day. Instead of the two o'clock dismissal bell, we were excused at two-thirty.

Our first duty as the new sophomores was to elect the new class officers. The president's office was held by Don Stankatis; the vice-president's office, by Janet Stephenson; and the secretary-treasurer's office, by Jack Dilendik.

Three additions to our faculty included Mrs. Grossman, Mr. Robitaille, and Mr. Keegan.

We were very proud of Doug Wilson and Sheila Kelley, who won awards at the school Science Fair and the Annie L. Sargent Speaking Contest, respectively.

The school play, "Time Out for Ginger," had two sophomores in its cast. They were Sara Clarenbach and Edward Donahue.

This was the first year the members of our class were eligible to enter the National Honor Society. The requirements for admittance to the Society depend upon leadership, scholarship, character, and service. These requirements were met by Janet Stephenson, Pat Janco, Joyce Berube, and Gloria Luceri.

We were very excited about the ordering of class rings, and could hardly wait for the receiving of them in our junior year.

Thus closed our sophomore year and the first half of our high school career.

JUNIOR YEAR

We returned to school with the proud distinction of being called upperclassmen.

Again we had to elect our class officers. Adam Marcinuk was elected to the presidency and Jack Dilendik was our vice-president. Jim Hanover was selected as our secretary-treasurer.

We finally received our class rings and wore them proudly.

HISTORY

The new faculty members this year were Mr. Hall and Mr. Forgetta. We were sorry when Miss Bailey found it necessary to retire during the year, but she was competently replaced by Mrs. Douglas.

In our junior year we elected the captains of the various varsity sports for the following year. They were Paul Cardello in football, Jack Butler in baseball and basketball, Janice Kasparian and Charlotte Byron in girls' basketball, Jack Dilendik in wrestling, and Paul Cardello and Jim Whittaker in track.

Our class showed itself strong in the academic field when three class members were inducted into the Honor Society. They were Maureen Laird, Margaret Hosking and Lenore Igo.

Janet Stephenson had the privilege of representing North Andover High School at the Boston College Junior Seminar. Janet was accompanied by Mr. Hayes and Mr. Powers, and two classmates, Joyce Berube and Pat Janco. Janet's speech, "Why I like to Live and Work in Massachusetts," was a great credit to herself, North Andover High School and the junior class.

Doug Wilson again won a top award at the North Andover Science Fair with his highly developed computer. With this "electronic brain" he received a second place in Lowell Tech's "Technorama" Science Fair.

Our class officers served on the Prom Committee, and Judy Belyea, James Crane, and Don Stankatis served on the After-Prom Committee. The Prom was the highlight of the school's social year.

And so closed our third year at N.A.H.S., with one year remaining.

SENIOR YEAR

As we entered our final year, we realized that we had reached the summit of our high school career.

The results of the class elections were as follows: Jack Dilendik was selected as our president; Paul Cardello was chosen vice-president; and Mike Sullivan served as our secretary-treasurer.

This year the school welcomed three new faculty members. They were Mr. Hull, Mr. Licare, and Mr. Graham.

Sharon Galeazzi was selected as this year's Football Queen. Serving in her court were Marie Cavallaro, Ruth Curtis, Beverly Hoyt, Gloria Luceri, and Eleanor Roberts.

Again our class showed great academic achievements when eight students were inducted into the Honor Society. They were Dot Beletsky, Joanne Campbell, Carole Jean Campione, Sharon Galeazzi, Margaret Cairns, Judi Duda, Marcia Moody, and Mary O'Connell.

Joyce Berube was the recipient of the D.A.R. Good Citizenship Award, and Robert Carroll was chosen Good Government Day Representative.

Judi Duda, Thomas Cantone, and Mike Kellan were the leads in the school play, "Ask Any Girl." Other seniors participating in the play were Jean Coffin, Margaret Cairns, David Dewhurst, and Andi Lodge.

At a school assembly, Mr. Hayes announced the three highest class honors. Janet Stephenson was named valedictorian; Patricia Janco, salutatorian; and Joyce Berube, class essayist.

At a class meeting Lenore Igo was chosen as the class orator. The class marshals were Gail Smith and Jim Whittaker. The class colors chosen were royal blue and white.

Doug Wilson won first prize at the State Science Fair at M.I.T. and at the "Technorama" at Lowell Tech. Doug also had the honors of exhibiting his work at the New England Science Fair.

The Prom committee included Judy Belyea, Sharon Galeazzi, Phil Busby, John Longo, and Jack Butler.

At the All-Sports Banquet, Jack Butler received the Scholar-Athlete Award.

We will never forget our four wonderful years at North Andover High School. As we leave, we will always remember our class motto: "We have crossed the bay; the ocean lies ahead."

Respectfully,
Charlotte and Jerry

CLASS

The year 1986—Occasion, 25th class reunion.

Here we are, George, after twenty-five years. I can't say I've seen any real drastic changes in any of our old classmates, with the possible exception of a few bald heads, gray hairs, and expanded waistlines.

This morning I boarded flight 319, non-stop for Logan Airport, and was shown to my seat by Jim Hanover, who flew me to Boston in no time flat.

Feeling a few hunger pangs after my flight, I stopped in at Vasello's famous Chinese-Italian restaurant for a bite to eat. The head waitress, Jackie Beaudoin, offered to show me the kitchen. Standing up to his elbows in noodles and ravioli was Alfred Boush. The chief cook and bottle washer was none other than Barry Shea, who ate more than he served. Barry told me his assistant, John Troia, had just slipped and fallen on one of Alfred's meatballs and had had to be rushed to the hospital, where the famous Dr. Hyde was treating him for a broken bone. Dr. Hyde's assistant, Jacquelyn Philbin, was doing her best to keep the patient quiet and relaxed.

Upon leaving Vasello's I flagged down a taxi driven by John Martin and went to visit poor John at the Mass. General. The smiling receptionist, Geraldine Parah, was happy to show me to his room, where four nurses, Ann Swasey, Bev Scannell, Janet Stephenson, and Jill Himber, were huddled around the victim.

We were all having a good laugh, while talking over old times, when we were interrupted by Dr. Janco and Dr. Hyde, who told us not to disturb their patient any longer.

At that point, I decided to leave the hospital and do a little window shopping before leaving for the reunion. I stopped by the Clark Snack Bar, which was owned by none other than our former classmate Carol. The buoyant short-order cook, Paul Cardello, was flipping pancakes in one hand and frying eggs in the other. Perched next to me were four saintly looking nuns from Notre Dame, Sharon Galeazzi, Thresa deVebre, Pat Doran, and Vivian Aziz, who had also stopped for a snack.

Tripping out of "Clark's," I noticed Kevin Burke's movie theater across the street, which was featuring the Academy Award winning movie "Put Your Stockings on, Brother, Your Toenails are Ripping the Sheets," starring Gerald Garnick, Judy Duda, Richard Heider, and John Randone.

A block from "Burke's" was Forgetta's Dress

PROPHECY

Shoppe, in which were five very attractive models, Pam Nevins, Bev Hoyt, Judy Olms, Marie Cavallaro, and Margaret Hosking. They were all very busy with preparations for the Miss America Contest, which was to be held in LaVallo Stadium, across the street from Kelley's Jelly Shoppe, owned by Sheila.

After walking for a few blocks, I flagged down another cab; this time it was "Cheery" Palmieri who taxied me to the North Station.

The walls in the station were covered with posters announcing future events to be held in the Garden. One which caught my eye read, "Longo Fights Dilendik for Dust Weight Championship."

Another read, "Richard Ramsden Knocks Out David Moore in First."

Before getting on my train I stopped in at Gail's Cosmetic Store, owned by Gail Donnelly, and operated by Dolores Barbagallo. They sold me some of "Gloria's Glamorous Grooming Goo," discovered by Gloria Luceri herself.

Upon boarding the train the conductor, James Dawson, informed me that the train was being engineered by smiling Henry Fredette.

Seated across the aisle were four rather gallant looking Navy men on their way to Cape Canaveral, Bill Casale, Jim Crane, Adam Marcinuk, and Donald Greenwood. Don told me they were on their way to see Jim Whittaker orbit to the moon, where Professor Douglas Wilson was already waiting his arrival. Their secretary, Mary O'Connell, was going to keep an accurate account of the happenings.

The train pulled in at the North Andover station right on schedule, so I decided to do some sight-seeing. The first thing which caught my eye was the new building called "The Coal Company," owned by Robert Cole, whose receptionist is Margaret Cairns. Margaret told me of some of the changes which have taken place around our town, such as Merrimack College's new basketball coach, Jack Butler; its new dean of women, Janice Kasparian; and its new English department chairman, Joyce Berube.

I drove uptown and saw a quaint little record shop owned by Steve Smith and managed by Joyce Lee. Joyce sold me a record by Maureen Laird, a famous singing star from Hollywood.

Further uptown I noticed a new dress shop called "Vera's," with Vera Gryniewicz as the successful owner. Helping Vera were Carole Campione, Yvonne Enaire, and Eileen McAloon, who modeled most of the clothing. Eileen was anxious to tell me of the attempted robbery which took place in the store a few days before. However, Bob McLellan, chief of police, was soon on the scene, assisted by Sergeant Ventrillo and Officer Busby.

As time was getting short, I drove to the reunion, which was being held at the Andover Country Club.

So, George, I'd say our class is better than average—having everything from short-order cooks to spacemen.

Well, Ellie, this morning I awoke early and shook my roommate Don Stankatis, at Cape Canaveral, where we were working on the missile project, and reminded him that we were catching an early rocket north to attend this reunion. We were glad to discover, upon boarding the rocket, that Gail Smith was the smiling hostess, and we spent a pleasant fifty minutes until we landed at the special landing in North Andover.

We stepped from our capsule and walked into Sandy's Dandy Sandwich Shoppe. The glamorous blond approaching had a familiar look, and we were pleased to note that our hostess was our former classmate Sandy Gregorowicz. She proudly showed us around her beautiful establishment and in the kitchen we met the chef, good old Roger Beeley, and the two cute waitresses, Dianne McCarty and Judy Bodge. From them we learned that the faculty at N.A.H.S. now included Mike Sullivan as head of the math department, Dottie Beletsky in the English department, and Charlotte Byron teaching the girls their ups and downs in phys. ed. They also told us that Frank Dushame was coaching a winning football team for the fifth straight season and that he was being ably assisted by Bob Carroll. Another interesting item was that the North Andover Movie Theater was owned and operated by Blake Adams and was now featuring "The Lady and the Man on the Flying Trapeze," starring Judith Belyea and Tom Cantone. Also in the cast were David Dewhurst, Diane Gagne, and Liz Stillwell.

Roger excused himself for a minute and then appeared from the kitchen holding a great big box of Wheaties. Everybody's hero, Ralph Kandrut, was beautifully pictured on the box, as he was now the champion who was making news with his discus throw.

We then called the Haselton Taxi Service and were flattered to have its chief executive Whit respond. As we started out, we saw a sign reading "Hugh Lee's Funeral Service—Buy your funeral now on the lay-away plan. We use only Jean Coffin's coffins."

For old times' sake, we stopped for an ice cream at the Dairy Queen. The refreshments were served through the courtesy of the new owner, Sam Girgenti, a little fatter, but oh, so handsome. Lucky him, for he was being assisted in his project by Andy Lodge. They told us that we had just missed seeing Donn Boyle, who was a big Texas oil man, and that Barbara Low was making millions with "Low's Low Calorie Formula." So much for the millionaires!

Whit suggested that we move on and we started to look over other parts of town, but fate chose to have our cab break down. A call was put in to the garage that advertised "Don't Fluster, Call Buster," and Mr. LaBelle was soon on the scene. The trouble proved to be major, and we were getting a little impatient when the police cruiser came along, driven by Chief Don Foss, and we accepted his invitation for a lift.

We cruised along with the Chief and he told us that his force included the following police-women: Schari Stiebitz, Isabella O'Leary, and Georgia Haight. Suddenly, the Chief put on the siren and some more speed, to apprehend a car going the wrong way on Water Street. He grumbled, "These women drivers!" Finally the offender stopped. The rosy cheeks were familiar and that was because they were still blooming on Pam Roy, who had as her passenger Connie Williams. Chief Foss was a stickler for no-fix, even though Pam explained that back in '61, Water Street was two-way. Court was called and Att'y John Donovan was appointed to defend our Pam. Judge Gerry Corradino was on the bench. He was very impatient as he said he had to go to a class reunion and immediately decided to fine the defendant ten dollars.

Jacquelyn Magoon was busy getting all the facts for her newspaper, as she was now court reporter. Pam paid the fine to the court clerk, Wayne Lambert, and weeping on Connie Williams' shoulder, left the courtroom.

Judge Corradino gave us a half-hearted invitation to ride over with him, but we accepted anyway. We arrived at the Andover Country Club and were met at the door by our host Ed Donahue, who looked wonderful although his hair was a little thinner on top. The first one to catch my eye was good old Mike Seymour, who looked younger than anyone present. Following behind him was Mike Kellan, and they informed us that they were in the insurance business together and had as their slogan, "Mike and Mike with service that you are sure to like."

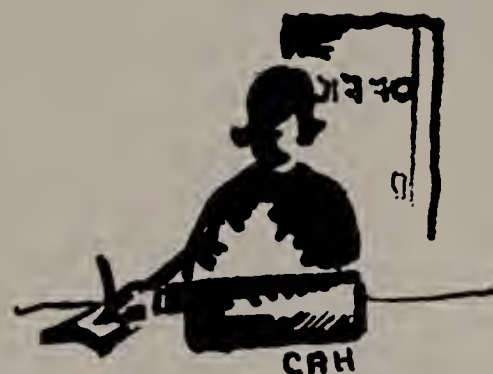

I felt a push from behind and, when I turned around, I did not recognize the tall figure until our host Ed introduced him as the Club pro, Dave Roberts. He invited me to have a "Coke" on him, as he had just hit four under par. Mal Norwood served us, and I learned that he was Ed's right-hand man in managing the Club. I couldn't help but notice a pretty blonde carrying on a lively conversation with a distinguished young man. A closer look proved that my lady was fashion magazine writer Margaret Maxwell, and my distinguished gentleman was Donald Markey, who is now called Mr. District Attorney.

Finally, it was time to start the festivities and we took our places at the tables. Grace was said by Father Leighton Detora, who was now stationed at Merrimack College. The matchbook covers at our places indicated that we should "Win with Windle" and give him our vote for truant officer, and we learned that his campaign manager, Lenore Igo, was making whirlwind speeches in all parts of town for the candidate.

The doily under the fruit cup carried this message, "Hunt's Catering Service—if you are hunting for the best—see Walter Hunt." Also, at each place, there were programs designed by Casey's Greeting Card Company, Maureen Casey, President.

The secretary for the reunion, Beverly Dow, stood up to read telegrams from members not present; Marcia Moody and Carol Murphy sent regrets from Washington, where they were working as secretaries; Charlotte Gallant was unable to get away from her New York Beauty Culture School, as were two of her teachers, Carol Howarth and Judith Twombly; John Thompson had been called by the President to straighten out the Electrical Union strike, sparked by Robert Packard and Ronnie Sullivan; and television stars Sara Clarenbach, Ruth Curtis, and Susan Phelan really disappointed us when we found that they would not be able to attend.

Next came an interesting talk by our representative at the United Nations, Pete Battaglioli, who was introduced by N.B.C.'s U.N. reporter Joanne Campbell, who looked stunning in a "Vera Original" hat by Vera Faro. She explained that she almost didn't make it, as her "Rabbito" ran out of gas. Yep, you guessed it, Steve Rabbito is making cars.

All in all, Ellie, it's been a great day, and I agree with you that our class is better than average.

There is just one thing that is bothering me. How come not one of us has ever tried marriage?

Throughout the year, Council members continued their information desk service. They also introduced guest speakers and artists at school assemblies.

Included among the Council's new projects this year were the playing of background music during school lunch periods and the use of student proctors in the cafeteria during the lunch hour. The Council also adopted a new method for the selection of cheerleaders and organized the election of the 1960 football queen.

The annual Student Council dance was held on May 5.

The Eastern Massachusetts District Conference for Student Councils was held in November at Chelmsford. The following delegates from the North Andover Council attended: John Dilendik, Paul Cardello, Marie Cavallaro, Joan Schruender, Michael Gorham, and Harry Wilkinson.

For the third successive year, the Council sponsored a very successful scholarship drive. This year it awarded two scholarships, in the amount of three hundred dollars each, to two deserving seniors of the 1961 graduating class.

The Skin Diving Club, composed of juniors and seniors, was organized in the early fall by boys interested in under-surface swimming and depth diving. All members took and passed American Red Cross First Aid and Water Safety courses, as prescribed by state law.

As members of the Civil Defense system in North Andover, the boys assist both the fire and police departments of the town in times of emergency. As a result of long hours spent in training, they are now able to remain under water for a period of thirty minutes, or more, without injury to themselves.

DRAMATIC CLUB

Members of the Dramatic Club took part in the annual school play and a special Christmas program. Several girls from the club were also chosen to take part in "A Midsummer Night's Dream," which was presented, together with selected Brooks School boys, at Brooks School and in Newton.

For the first time this year the group conducted a dance to help defray the cost of the school play.

The faculty advisor for the club is James W. McDonald.

The Mathematics League, a new school organization, participated in contests at various high schools in northeastern Massachusetts. Each of these contests consisted of the solving of a series of problems selected from various fields of mathematics. Those members selected to compete in the various categories took part in short written examinations.

The League helped keep students alert to mathematical areas other than those being studied in the course in which each was enrolled.

High scorers from North Andover High's team included Janet Stephenson, Kathleen Murphy, and Carl Lindfors.

The Science Club members enjoyed an outstanding year, participating in several science fairs and winning many awards. They also had the opportunity of hearing guest speakers and seeing scientific films at their monthly meetings.

The fourth annual Science Fair, sponsored by the Science Club, was conducted on March 24 in our school cafeteria. Douglas Wilson won first prize for his Dediac II computer; Robert Coppeta won second prize for his display on lunar photography; and Cheryl Lewis won third prize for her exhibition on the fuel cell.

These three students also exhibited their work at Technorama V, Lowell Technological Institute Fair, held on April 7 and 8. There Douglas won first prize for his Dediac II exhibit and received a gold medal, a savings bond, a Navy Science Cruiser award, and a plaque, now on display in our school trophy case. Robert received an Air Force award for his exhibit in aerospace sciences.

Douglas Wilson also went on to receive first prize at the Massachusetts State Science Fair, held at MIT on April 28, 29, and 30. Cheryl Lewis and Robert Coppeta also represented North Andover High at MIT.

Douglas Wilson had the honor of exhibiting his computer at the New England Science Fair, held in Portland, Maine, on May 5 and 6.

The band played at many of our school functions, including football games, rallies, the Tech Tournament, and graduation. It also participated in several local parades and, on May 28, played at the dedication ceremonies for the Carl Thomas Playground.

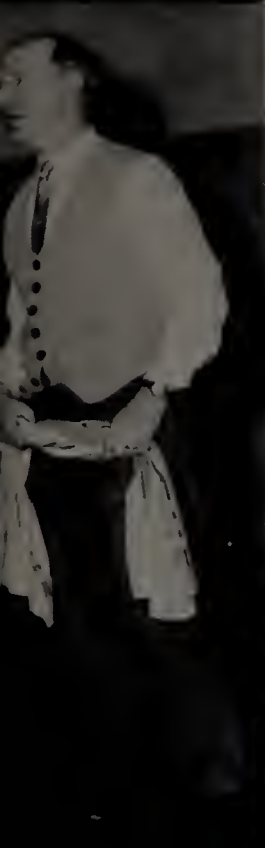

On December 10, the North Andover Music Department played host to the New England Solo and Ensemble Music Festival. The following members of the band were awarded medals at this festival: Margaret Hosking, Susan Detora, and Janet Smith, flute trio; John Newman and Wayne Lambert, cornet duet.

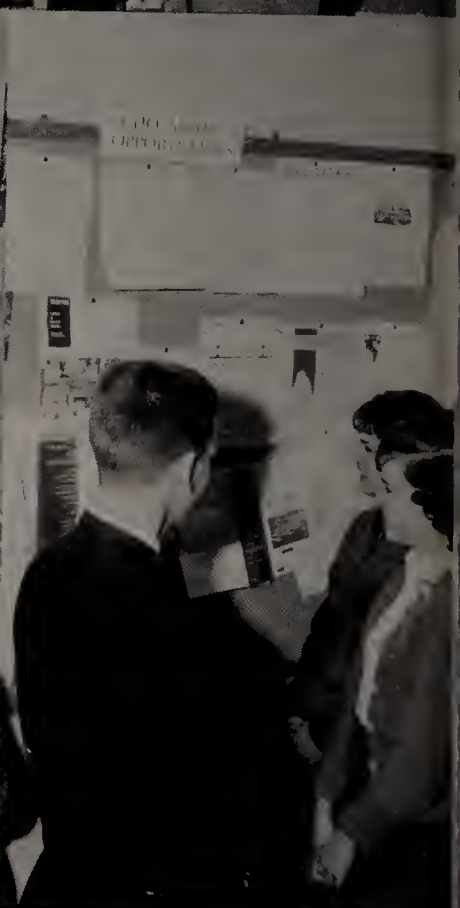

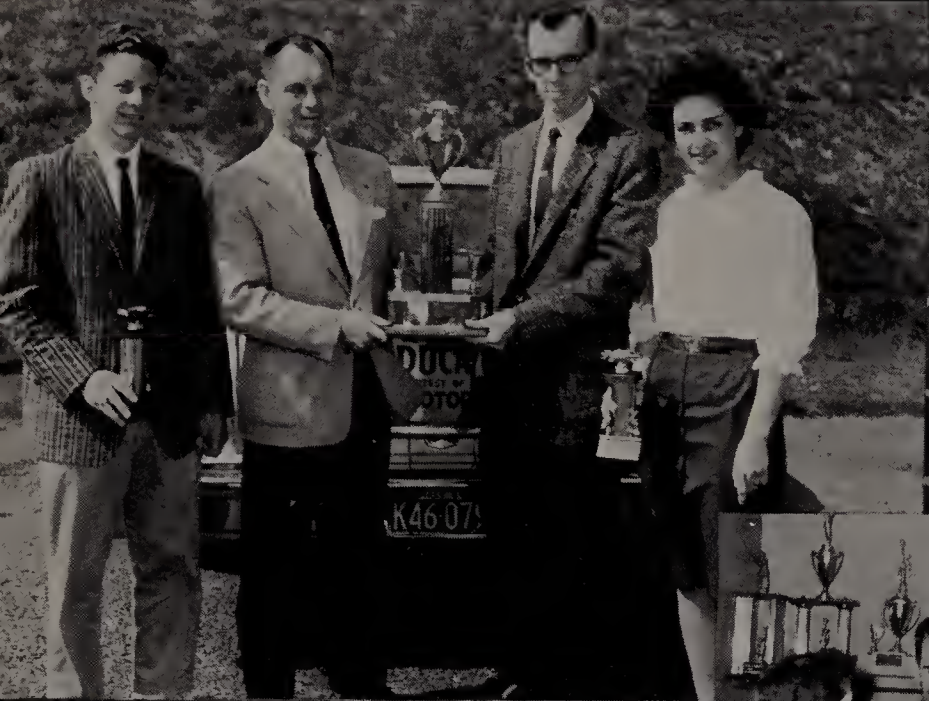

On December 10, Margaret Hosking represented the band at the Northeast District Music Concert, held at Reading, Mass.

The band took part in the Northeastern Massachusetts Music Festival at Bedford on May 6.

The group performed at the "Evening Musicale" on March 10, and at the annual spring concert on May 12.

Certain members of the band participated in an "exchange" assembly held in North Reading High School on May 25.

CHEERLEADERS

The cheerleaders' group is composed of Barbara Bresnahan, head cheerleader, Gloria Luceri, Ruth Curtis, Mary Lou Donahue, JoAnne Lee, Susan Schorman, Catherine Ceplikas, Diane Fournier, Jeanne Porter, and Sharon Galeazzi.

The girls not only cheered at all school football and basketball games, but also led the cheers at three rallies held before important athletic contests. In addition, they put on an exhibition at a P.T.S.A. dance at the beginning of the school year. They used the proceeds from their "Mad Hatters" dance on April 14 to purchase new uniforms for the squad.

Barbara Bresnahan represented North Andover in the Cheerleaders All-Star Squad at the end of the basketball season.

Mildred Dimlich is the faculty advisor for the group.

MAJORETTES

The majorettes this year were Maureen Laird, Carolyn Nelson, Marie Cavallaro, Eileen Northam, Vera Faro, Carol Howarth, and Jean Boush.

The girls were active participants at all our football games and parades. One of their outstanding performances was a twirling drill given at the Tech Tourney in the Boston Garden. They also appeared with the band at the Northeastern Music Festival in Bedford on May 6.

Clarence F. Mosher is the director of the group.

The high scorer for the season was Charlotte Byron, whose total number of points was 209. She also had the highest individual score of 20 points.

The two members of the team who represented us at the All-Star game were Janice Kasparian and Charlotte Byron.

The annual basketball game between the boys' and girls' teams of our school was held in March. This game was followed by a dance sponsored by the girls' team.

The Scarlet Knights' hoop team enjoyed a very fine season under Robert Licare, the new head coach. The boys ended the season with a record of thirteen wins and only five losses, and had, in post-season tournament play, a record of two wins and one loss.

Having been beaten twice by Chelmsford during the regular season, North Andover finished second to Chelmsford in Lowell Suburban League play. When the pressure was really on, however, North Andover showed its superiority to Chelmsford by defeating the Chelmsford team in the quarter-finals of the Tech Tourney. The Knights were topped by one point by the Foxboro team in the final seconds of the semi-finals of the Tech Tourney.

Our congratulations go to Ron McRobbie and Captain Jack Butler, who finished second and third, respectively, in the race for the Greater Lawrence scoring title. Congratulations also to David Roberts for his performance against Chelmsford.

Jack Butler and Dave Roberts were selected for the Lowell Suburban League All-Star Team. Captain Butler was also named a member of the Class C All-Star Team.

The North Andover football team was unfortunate this year in losing the greater percentage of its games. However, the squad overcame its severe lack of depth to win a gratifying victory over Methuen. It was in this game that the team lost the services of its fine quarterback, Jack Butler.

Richard Moynihan and Noel Beaudoin will serve as the co-captains of next year's team. Good luck, boys!

The North Andover wrestling team was fortunate this year to have the services of Captain Jack Dilendik, John Ingram, and Blake Adams, all of whom won first places in the Y.M.C.A. Greater Lawrence Wrestling Tournament, in which North Andover scored forty points. Jack Dilendik received the outstanding wrestler award in the Tournament.

John Ingram and Blake Adams were undefeated in this year's competition.

The North Andover team received sweet revenge when it outscored Dexter, 32-8. This year's team has been one of the best in wrestling history at North Andover.

Many records were broken this year. James Whittaker set a new mark in the high jump, John Moran in the mile, Lanson Hyde in the 880, James Crane in the 100 yard dash, Charles Vose in the discus, and James Crane, Lanson Hyde, Thomas Angeloro, and Leonard Nussbaum in the relay.

Lanson Hyde was this year's high scorer with 115 1/2 points, which broke the old record of 102 3/4 points.

In the Little Three Meet, the team came in second to Andover.
